American Educational Studies Association

INSTITUTIONAL SPONSORSHIP FORM

The American Educational Studies Association (AESA) was established in 1968 as an international learned society for students, teachers, research scholars, and administrators who are interested in the foundations of education. AESA is a society primarily comprised of college and university professors who teach and research in the field of education utilizing one or more of the liberal arts disciplines of philosophy, history, politics, sociology, anthropology, or economics as well as comparative/international and cultural studies. Graduate students in these disciplines also form a core of the organization. The purpose of social foundations study is to bring intellectual resources derived from these areas to bear in developing interpretive, normative, and critical perspectives on education, both inside of and outside of schools.

AESA intentionally tries keep registration costs low to facilitate participation of graduate students and early career faculty. We are also working to make our conference more accessible and inclusive, by providing accommodations for attendees and by providing American Sign Language interpreters at all major lectures and events. Your institutional sponsorship helps us achieve these goals. See the different levels of sponsorship and their benefits on the following page.
